About the Society for Cryobiology (SfC)

The Society for Cryobiology was founded in 1964 to bring together those from the biological, medical, and physical sciences who have a common interest in the effect of low temperatures on biological systems. The Society currently has approximately 300 members representing countries from around the world. Members represent the 27 countries of Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Canada, China, the Czech Republic, Denmark, France, Germany, India, Israel, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Peru, Portugal, South Korea, Spain, Sweden, Taiwan, Turkey, Ukraine, the United Kingdom, the United States and Uruguay. The purpose of the Society is to promote scientific research in low temperature biology, to improve scientific understanding in this field, and to disseminate and apply this knowledge to the benefit of mankind. The Society requires of all its members the highest ethical and scientific standards in the performance of their professional activities.

The objectives of the Society are fulfilled in two primary ways. First, the Society organizes an annual scientific meeting dedicated to all aspects of low temperature biology. This international meeting offers opportunities for presentation and discussion of the most up-to-date research in cryobiology as well as reviewing specific aspects through symposia and workshops. Second, the Society publishes a journal, Cryobiology, which is the foremost refereed scientific publication in this area, and a Society newsletter.

The Conference Program is About the Science and Interactions

Our annual conferences are attended by members from the 27 countries above and beyond. Last year we also attracted scientists and graduate students from Austria, Bangladesh, Brazil, Colombia, Finland, Ghana, Kazakhstan, and Russia who came to hear the 93 oral presentations and view the 58 posters presenting the latest cutting edge science. The attendees are there to interact and network with each other and the Exhibit delivers additional value to our attendees and presents a unique opportunity for your company to interact with scientific professionals from all areas of cryobiology. As an exhibitor you will have multiple opportunities to discuss your products and services with enthusiastic international scientists and students eager to learn how your company can help them. You will encounter potential new customers as well as existing clients.

We realize our delegates are very busy during a typical conference. That's why we schedule specific events in our exhibition hall throughout the entire meeting to drive foot traffic to your exhibition booth. The exhibit hall is where every coffee and beverage break occurs and where the posters are displayed guaranteeing attendees get multiple exposure to your company’s products and services. In addition, two evening sessions on Sunday and Monday are scheduled for attendees to mingle, view posters, and visit your booth. The free afternoon on Tuesday gives our delegates additional time to browse your booth at leisure, discuss the advantages of your products and services, or build business-to-business opportunities.
